As the mountains rise
Above the salt flats
In majesty and wonder
We will listen
For the quiet call,
The still small voice,
A guide with measured steps,
Scouting out the trail.

And we may be amazed
By the thunders' clap
The chance encounter,
A wild and crazy shout,
Rhythms that will make us dance.

And within it all
The precious beat of human hearts,

Of hopes and fears and dreams,
Open now in anticipation.
Live with patience
Grace, I must believe,
Awaits us all.
