Faith brings us to truth; philosophy makes us grasp it; ethics makes us practice it; and ritual makes us one with it. ~Jagmenderlal Jaini

“I know God won't give me anything I can't handle. I just wish he didn't trust me so much.” ~Mother Teresa

“To love. To be loved. To never forget your own insignificance. To never get used to the unspeakable violence and the vulgar disparity of life around you. To seek joy in the saddest places. To pursue beauty to its lair. To never simplify what is complicated or complicate what is simple. To respect strength, never power. Above all, to watch. To try and understand. To never look away. And never, never to forget.” ~Arundhati Roy

*I tried to find Him on the Christian cross, but he wasn't there;
I went to the Hindu Temple and to the old pagodas,
but I could not find a trace of Him anywhere.
I searched on the mountain and in the valleys, but neither in the heights nor in the depths was I able to find Him.
I went to the Ka'aba in Mecca, but He was not there either.
I questioned the scholars and philosophers,
But he was beyond their understanding.
Then I looked into my heart and it was there where He dwelt that I saw Him;
He was nowhere else to be found.*

~Mawlana Jalaluddin Rumi

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course will examine the major global religions from a cross-cultural, multi-religious perspective. Taking into consideration that a course that explores many religions cannot be comprehensive, we will consider the religions from a thematic perspective by analyzing fundamental beliefs and practices in the various religious traditions. In addition, we will also examine assumptions underlying the discipline of religious studies. Students will engage through weekly readings and forum discussion, as well as other interactive learning activities, as part of the online learning community. Students of all faiths and backgrounds are invited and encouraged to enroll. Priority given to off-campus SKSM students. [PIN required; 20 max enrollment. Auditors excluded]

The online education format brings with it both benefits and challenges. On the one hand, it provides greater flexibility and the opportunity for all of us to gather together in collaborative learning—no matter where we are in the world. On the other hand, certain limitations can sometimes render the format less interactive than a traditional in-person course. Taking all of this into consideration, and in the hopes of providing a lively learning experience, this course has been designed to provide as much quality interaction as possible—both with the material and with the class community. The course material will include images, video clips, and music relevant to the faith traditions we will be studying, along with the textual readings. In addition, collaborative dialogue with classmates (weekly forum postings as well as “live” discussion via Skype, phone, etc.) will hopefully create a dynamic and stimulating learning environment where we can all engage in thoughtful discussion and reflection.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:

1. Identify and describe the (often complex) historical contexts of the world’s global religious traditions.
2. Compare and contrast thematic topics across the various global religious traditions.
3. Engage in meaningful, reflective, respectful dialogue (both written and oral) regarding the global religious traditions.
4. Assess and articulate their own “location” in relation to each faith tradition.
5. Critically analyze the methodologies employed by religious studies scholars.
6. Identify and critically analyze religious themes in a film.

REQUIRED TEXTS

- Fisher, Mary Pat. Living Religions, 8th ed. (Upper Saddle River, NJ: Pearson, 2010).
ISBN-10: 0205835856 | ISBN-13: 978-0205835850
- Juergensmeyer, Mark. Global Religions: An Introduction. (New York, NY: Oxford University Press, 2003). ISBN-10: 0195158741 | ISBN-13: 978-0195158748
- Additional readings TBD (PDF copies will be posted on Moodle)

Note: Both texts are available on www.amazon.com or from other booksellers.

REQUIREMENTS: Successful completion of the course will be based upon four criteria:

- | | |
|--|-------|
| 1. Introduction essay (2-3 pages) | (10%) |
| 2. Weekly Discussions and Forum Posts | (45%) |
| 3. Film Review (2-3 pages) | (10%) |
| 4. Final Research Paper and Site Visit (10-12 pages) | (35%) |

GRADING AND COURSE EVALUATION: As per Starr King School for the Ministry’s educational methodology, SKSM students will receive narrative evaluations at the end of the term. Students from others schools at the GTU will receive letter grades. If, as an SKSM student, you need to receive a letter grade, please let the instructor know at your earliest convenience (preferably within the first 3 weeks of the semester).

INTRODUCTION ESSAY

For this assignment, students will write a personal essay in which they introduce themselves, discuss their own backgrounds, and reflect on the following question: What is your definition of religion or the sacred? In addition, students should briefly discuss why they have chosen to enroll in this course, and what they hope to take away from the experience. Students have the option to either email the essay directly to the instructor, or to post it in the forum (the latter is encouraged, as this will give other class members a chance to get to know you as well). This essay should be 2-3 pages (double spaced). Due Wednesday, SEPTEMBER. 9th.

WEEKLY CHAVRUTA DISCUSSIONS AND FORUM POSTING

The participation component of the course will consist of three aspects:

- 1. Chavruta pairs: Since this is an online class, the majority of your participation will take place on Moodle. However, in an effort to create a more dynamic class community, we will seek to expand the boundaries of the traditional online learning format. In the Jewish tradition, there is a rabbinic approach known as chavruta (the literal meaning of this term is “friendship” or “companionship”) where two people (or sometimes a small group) gather together to study, discuss, and analyze the Talmud. In the spirit of this practice, we will take a similar pedagogical approach in this class: at the beginning of the semester, each class member will be assigned a chavruta partner, and each week, the partners will discuss the assigned readings via Skype, Google Hangout, or over the phone. There is no specified length for these conversations, but each session should allow for a refining of both partners’ thoughts on the readings (a minimum of 20 minutes is recommended for each session). It is hoped that this additional opportunity for a more “in-person” and collaborative style of communication will help deepen the overall experience and engagement with the religious traditions. (NOTE: if you haven’t used Skype or Google Hangout before or have a slight technology phobia, don’t worry! I will pass out detailed instructions and help in any way I can to facilitate this. You can also make free phone calls anywhere in the US via Gmail. This would be an option if platforms like Skype are not available to you because you don’t have a webcam).
- 2. Forum posting: The second aspect of the participation grade will consist of weekly written reflections on that week’s assigned readings. This reflection should be approximately 500 words and will consist of two parts:
 - a. Your own thoughts and analysis of the readings. What issues arise for you in the readings in relation to your own location (whether religious, social, gender, or other location)? It’s also helpful to raise questions you had about the readings.
 - b. A brief report of the main points (or, in your eyes, the most interesting issue(s)) you discussed with your chavruta partner. Where did you agree? Where did you disagree? Were you able to reach any sort of synthesis through your dialogue?
- 3. Weekly response: The third requirement is that each student respond to at least one classmate’s post each week (it is preferable that you comment on a post by someone other than your chavruta partner, in order to dialogue with other class members as well). These responses can be brief (100-200 words) and should seek to respectfully engage the main points the poster raised by adding something further to the discussion, or by (gently) raising clarifying questions.

NOTE: Forum reflections must be posted by 11 PM Friday (PST) of the week the readings are assigned. This means that you will have the week to complete the readings and coordinate a time to talk/video chat with your chavruta partner before completing the written reflections. The weekly required responses to other students' posts should ideally be posted no later than the following Tuesday.

NOTE: If you are experiencing problems with Moodle (logging in or otherwise) contact the instructor or the GTU's Moodle support IMMEDIATELY.

FILM REVIEW

In order to broaden our pedagogical approach, we will engage not only written texts, but also other media, such as films. For this assignment, students will choose one film from a list (the instructor will provide this at the start of the semester) and write a 2-3 page (double spaced) review that analyzes the religious symbolism and/or issues present in the film. Questions you might consider: Does the film adequately and respectfully represent the religious tradition? Does the film represent only a small facet of the faith, or a broader view? Does it deal primarily with ethical, social, ritual, or other dimensions of the religious tradition? Does it address social justice issues? Film reviews are due Sunday, Dec. 13th. There is a Film Review forum listed under the week of December 7-13 on Moodle where you should post your review.

FINAL PAPER AND SITE VISIT

For the final paper, students will write a research paper on a particular religious tradition and topic of their choice. Students may choose a topic that interests them, with one caveat: the paper should focus on a religious tradition different from the student's own tradition or spiritual practice.

As a component of the final paper, students are required to visit a place of worship outside their own faith tradition, for either 1.) a prayer/worship service or a religious or spiritual ritual, or 2.) to meet with the community leader(s) in order to learn about the faith practices of the community. Students should take detailed notes for their site visit and then incorporate these into the final paper. Final papers should be 10-12 pages in length. Final Papers are due by Sunday, December 20th.

Students should consult with the instructor about their final paper topic no later than Mon, Nov. 2nd.

Students with disabilities, health concerns, etc. who so desire may make special arrangements with the professor at (or prior to) the beginning of the semester. This is a justice issue and will allow the student to be in the course in a way which is sustainable for them.
