Syllabus:

In this introductory course, we will study Islam in a personal and up-close manner.

By the end of the semester students will gain an intimate perspective on the daily lives, rituals and prayers of the Muslim People.

There is no required reading for Intro to Islam . All classes will be based on the oral tradition and will require students to take notes.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS:

- a) All students are required to attend all classes. If the need to be absent is necessary, please let me know as soon as possible.
- b) All students should participate in each class session to the best of their abilities.
- c) All students are required to attend a dhikr or a jumah at least once during The course of the class. Times and locations to be announced in class.
- e) Students are asked to keep a spiritual journal for their own benefit to engage in dialogue with the materials that you are reading.

Grades and evaluations: Your grades/evaluations will be based on class participation and your final project (to be announced).
